Research integrity, open science and impact are principles likely to be included when an agreement between research funders and universities, which has set global standards for the treatment of junior academics, is updated.

The Concordat to Support the Career Development of Researchers has been widely credited with improving conditions for staff in UK higher education since it was issued in 1992, and updated in 2008. In 2005 the European Commission issued a similar document, called the European Charter for Research and the Code of Conduct for the Recruitment of Researchers, based on the original document.

Researcher development agency Vitae, which issues the concordat, is now working to update the document's seven principles on recruitment, recognition and support. Janet Metcalfe, Vitae's head, said that changes to the research environment in the 10 years since the latest version of the agreement was issued mean that the priorities for career development have shifted.

“The recent drive to do much more 'open' research - engaging with research users and society and demonstrating the impact of research - is not particularly well reflected in the concordat,” Dr Metcalfe said. Research integrity, ethics and reproducibility are also likely to take a more prominent place in any update.

“There is concern that we need to make the language much more current and future-looking to help institutions think about some of these issues,” she said, adding that another area that will be reviewed is who exactly the document applies to.

The current and previous versions of the concordat, which is voluntary, explicitly state that the principles apply to research staff. However, more teaching staff have found themselves doing research in recent years.

Pressures from the research excellence framework have meant that some teaching staff at smaller institutions have been encouraged to develop a research portfolio, Dr Metcalfe said. On top of this many university staff working in teaching positions, particularly in the arts and humanities, are trying to sustain their research endeavours so that they can get a full academic position. “Currently they are not articulated [for] in the concordat language,” she said.

In addition, some parts of the agreement have now become routine practice for universities and funders, Dr Metcalfe added. One example of this is the provision of additional funding for the maternity, paternity and adoptive leave of research staff. Meanwhile, the language in the equality and diversity section is “dated”.

Vitae is currently recruiting an expert panel to help shape a new version of the agreement.

holly.else@timeshighereducation.com (mailto:holly.else@timeshighereducation.com)
Have your say

Comment *

Please make sure that your comment does not contravene our terms and conditions (/terms-and-conditions/).
Update your username to use in public-facing parts of the site, such as commenting on articles here (/user).

Submit comment

Sponsored

HKBU

Founded in 1956, Hong Kong Baptist University (HKBU) is committed to academic excellence in teaching, research and service. Click here to watch video.

Promoted by Hong Kong Baptist University
A New Hospital

A new hospital to cater for the needs of children is just what the continent needs.
Promoted by University of the Witwatersrand

Featured Jobs

Forrest Post Doctoral Research Fellow (/www.timeshighereducation.com/unijobs/listing/56290/?trackid=10)
UNIVERSITY OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA

Research Fellow in Statistical Epidemiology (/www.timeshighereducation.com/unijobs/listing/56099/?trackid=10)
LONDON SCHOOL OF HYGIENE & TROPICAL MEDICINE (LSHTM)

PhD Scholarships in Health and Medical Research (/www.timeshighereducation.com/unijobs/listing/56251/?trackid=10)
UNIVERSITY OF TASMANIA

Phone Advisor (/www.timeshighereducation.com/unijobs/listing/56253/?trackid=10)
GSM LONDON

Administrator in Postal Services & Travel Plan (/www.timeshighereducation.com/unijobs/listing/56257/?trackid=10)
UNIVERSITY OF CHICHESTER

See all jobs (/www.timeshighereducation.com/unijobs/listings/)
Most Viewed

Best universities in the UK (/student/best-universities/best-universities-uk)
September 21, 2016

Best universities in the United States (/student/best-universities/best-universities-united-states)
September 21, 2016

Best universities in Europe (/student/best-universities/best-universities-europe)
September 21, 2016

September 21, 2016
Should academics be paid for peer review? (/news/should-academics-be-paid-for-peer-review)
March 16, 2016

Looking for the next step in your career?

Job title, keywords or company name

Location

Search Jobs

Most Commented

Of monsters and mentors: PhD disasters, and how to avoid... (/features/monsters-and-mentors-phd-disasters-and-how-to-avoid-them)
Despite all that's been done to improve doctoral study, horror stories keep coming. Here three students relate PhD nightmares while two academics advise on how to ensure a successful supervision

One in three UK universities going backwards on female... (/news/one-in-three-uk-universities-going-backwards-on-female-professorships)
New data show proportion of professors who are women has declined at some institutions